

UNITED STATES OIL FUND ANNOUNCES EXPANDED WEBSITE

NEW YORK, July 25, 2006 – The United States Oil Fund (ticker "USO") today announced that it has updated and expanded its web site, www.unitedstatesoilfund.com, to make it more informative and user friendly.

John Hyland, CFA, Portfolio Manager and Director of Portfolio Research said, "We have been listening to what the traders, investors, and other users of USO have said they wanted from our web site. We are very pleased to be able to offer them additional, timely, and pertinent information concerning our crude oil futures portfolio such as daily trades in crude oil futures and Treasury bills, prices of those trades, and the yield on cash held by the portfolio. This information, in addition to the material presented in our current prospectus and filings, should help investors and traders to make better informed trading and investing decisions."

The United States Oil Fund issues an exchange traded security whose price is intended to track changes in the price of crude oil over time. A copy of the prospectus describing the Fund and the risks associated with investing in the Fund is available through the fund's website, www.unitedstatesoilfund.com.
